Local knowledge matters

AOGS is member-led and encourages a bottom-up approach. Every proposal should be supported by an effective Local Advisory Committee comprising mainly current AOGS members who are genuinely willing and able to contribute.

AOGS members interested in helping their city or region develop a bid may contact the Secretariat. Where interests align, AOGS may—with both parties' consent—facilitate an introduction to a prospective proposer. Informal expressions of interest and venue names will remain confidential unless disclosure is authorised.

What should a proposal demonstrate

- A venue that can deliver the scientific programme, posters, exhibition and networking functions.
- Accessible accommodation, transport and visa arrangements, plus meaningful convention bureau support.
- A committed local team and a complete, transparent allocation of costs and responsibilities.

Please review the full call before submitting. AOGS retains ownership and financial control of meeting revenue; the approved CFP also sets out proposer responsibilities and the site-inspection arrangements for shortlisted bids.
