

KUO-NAN LIOU

Dr. Kuo-Nan Liou is a Distinguished Professor of Atmospheric Sciences and Director of the Joint Institute for Regional Earth System Science and Engineering at UCLA. He received his B.S. from National Taiwan University and his Ph.D. from New York University. Liou has authored more than 210 peer-reviewed papers and is best known for his two monographs in atmospheric radiation. Elected a Member of the National Academy of Engineering in 1999 and the Academia Sinica in 2004, he received a creativity award from NSF in 1996, the Jule Charney Award from AMS in 1998, the Nobel Peace Prize Certificate bestowed on IPCC in 2007, and the 2010 COSPAR William Nordberg Medal.