

Zhiming KUANG

Dr. Zhiming Kuang is a professor in the Department of Earth and Planetary Sciences and the School of Engineering and Applied Sciences at Harvard University. He received his B.S. from Peking University in 1996 and his Ph.D. from California Institute of Technology in 2003. Kuang has authored more than 30 peer-reviewed papers and is best known for his work on tropical convection and its interaction with larger-scale circulations. He received the Clarence Leroy Meisinger Award from American Meteorological Society in 2012.